New Yorks Surprise the St. Louis Stars-Philadelphias Rather Easy for the Cincinnatis, While the Bostons, With Nichols in the Box, Badly Beat the Chicagos - Gossip. The strong Pittsburg team defeated the champion Brooklyns yesterday afternoon and the latters' hold upon second place was reduced to 20 points. The New Yorks furnished a surprise by easily beating St. Louis, but as Cincinnati got away with the Philadelphia Ewing's men are still tail-enders. The Bostons, with Nichols in the box for the first time since the 1st of May, took the Chicagos into camp without any trouble. The results: Pittsburg, 7; Brooklyn, 4. New York, 10; St. Louis, 3.

reorganized Pittsburgs made their first ow to Brooklyn cranks yesterday, and they played such a fast game of ball that many critics went home satisfied that they will be in the hunt for the pennant with a vengeance. In batting and fielding the Pittsburgs visibly excelled the Champions, though the latter made the plucklest kind of a rally in the ninth inning to pull out a victory. The visitors supported the pitching of Phillippi in a way that broke the hearts of the home rooters. Ely and Williams killed many seemingly safe hits, while Hans Wagner pulled in several tremendous drives that otherwise would have been good for doubles and triples. Wagner was the star of the game, by the way. In addition to his great felding, he hit the ball for a single, a double and a three-bagger, and also ran the bases like fielding, he hit the ball for a single, a double and a three-bagger, and also ran the bases like a whirlwind. He comes pretty near being in the class with Lajoie of Philadelphia as a general player, and Pittaburg can be congratulated upon having his services.

Nops, the Brooklyn left-hander, was reasonably effective for the first five innings, but after that the visitors began to find him, and in the eighth they clinched their victory with three runs that were scored on clean hitting, just in time, as matters turned out. Dahlen and Cross made many beautiful plays which helped to keep the Pittsburg run making down. Wild throws by Nops and Farrell, however, were costly, as two runs were due to their errors. The 3,000 rooters did not expect a rally in the ninth by the Champions, as they had been puzzled all through the game by Phillippi's fast delivery. But the rally came and it was a hairraiser. Six runs were needed to the the score; a task that nobody expected the Champions to achieve. Dahlen was the first batsman and was out, as Ely made a grand running catch of his bid for a base hit. Cross took a base on balls, the first handed out by Phillippi, and Daly put him on third with a base hit to left. The crowd began to root loudly and there was much excitement when Farrell smashed a single to centre, which let Cross in. Manager Hanlon sent Sheckard up to bat for Nops, but the change was fruitless, as "Sheck" struck out.

Two men out and the score 7 to 2! It looked a forlorn hope, and the crowd began to file out mournfully. Jones, however, cracked out another base hit to centre, and Daly ran in, Farrell going to second. Keeler made still another safe infield hit, and the bases were filled. Jennings followed with a corking drive toward second base, which Ritchey knocked down, but could not recover. Farrell scored and the bags were still covered, with three runs needed to the. Capt. Kelley was the man who was begged to send in all three runners with a double-bagger or a smite for three bases. Phillippi used his speed

After yesterday's game at the Polo Grounds Si Seymour, the south-paw twirler, received the price of a railroad ticket to Worcester, Mass, and the conscientious but erratic pitcher left for that point last night. As stated in The Sunof yesterday, he has been farmed out to the Worcester club of the Eastern League, and until he is able to put the ball over the plate more consistently than he has done thus far this season he will pitch no more games for the New Yorks. His side won the game on the Polo Grounds yesterday, but not much credit is due Seymour. He issued eleven free passes to first, made a wild pitch which let in the first run of the game and was hit safely ten times. The fact that the St. Louis team only got three men across the plate considering the aid they received from Seymour is one of those strange things that is recorded in baseball history once in a while. But with Davis back in his old place the New Yorks were like a brand new team. They fielded perfectly, with the exception of Seymour's wild throw to catch a man napping in the last inning, and this misplay cost nothing. They also hit the ball hard and often, knocking Jones out of the box in the fifth inning. Young, who relieved Jones, was all right until the eighth, when a couple of hits and a high throw by Robinson let in two runs. At that time, however, the game was wen and a run or two made no difference in the outcome.

won and a run or two made no difference in the outcome.

The St. Louis team did not put up a pennantwinning game. Their fielding was rocky and they lost many an opportunity to score runswith a timely base hit. The fact that thirteen of them were left on bases shows how badly they needed hits at the right time. Hank O'Day officiated as umpire and there was a good deal of kicking. Keister protested vigorously when the umpire declared Selbach safe at second in the third inning and Davis made a prolonged kick when he was thrown out at the plate in the fifth. There were frequent grumbles from all hands throughout the game and more than once the umpire was forced to call down men on the coaching lines. Davis's batting and fielding were the features.

EASY FOR WATERCOLOR.

THE WATERCRESS COLT CAPTURES THE MANHANSET STAKES. He Reats the Fleischmann Crack Bonnibert in Track-Record Time-Central Trust Scores in the Handicap-Her Ladyship Runs a Sensational Finish at Gravesend Racecourse. Racing at the Gravesend track yesterday was again above the average standard of merit and the attendance was liberal in the face of a nippy breeze from the sea, calculated to scare patrons who were only equipped for summer outfits. The majority of those who made the trip, however, were regulars, and they found no difficulty in keeping up circulation in the betting ring after hasty trips to the paddock. They were also stimulated by the success of three favorites in the first four races and a good run for their money in the fifth. Lively interest was manifested in the Man-hanset Stakes of $2,000 for two-year-olds. The distance was four and a half furlongs, and eight well-tried juvenile sprinters responded to the bugle call. Bonnibert from the Fleischmann stable figured to be best of the bunch on public form and he was played down to 9 to 5, while Watercolor, after opening on equal terms with Albert's speedy son, receded to 11 to 5. It was only Watercolor's second effort with colors up and some of the shrewd players fought shy of him, but the Watercress colt proved that his victory of Tuesday was no fluke. Getting off fifth in a good break he sprinted right through his field and holding his own deverly to the end, won by a length. Bonnibert showed in front after flag-fall, but then dropped back into the bunch and had a stormy nibert showed in front after flag-fall, but then dropped hack into the bunch and had a stormy passage around the turns. Maher failed to get him going at his best oilp up to the last sixteenth pole, but then he came along in genuine stake style and best Tower of Candles a length for the place. Tonioum finished an equally close fourth with Outlander, Malden, The Bluecoat and Ancodote trailing home in the order named. The youngsters had to finish against a stiff breeze, but Watercolor tied the track record made by Golden Age on May 28.

Outside of the stake, the most important event was a handicap for three-year-olds and upward, at one mile and a furiong. Firearm and Precursor declined the issue, leaving a well-balanced field of seven to go. It was a serious guessing proposition, but Central Trust closed a slight favorite over Knight of the Garter. Lothario, Raffaello and Lateon. The favorite forced the pace in the first run to the stand, but gave away on the turn to Hammock, who was promptly passed by Knight of the Garter. The Knight is howed the way right along to the homestretch, but Central Trust then made his bid and won comfortably by a length and a half from Prince of Melbourne, who beat the Knight a neck.

The Puritan's superiority over the eleven other maiden two-year-olds in the first race, was such an open secret before post time that most of the plungers grabbed at 2 to 1. There was also a strong movement in favor of Prince of Melrose and Gautama which cut their odds several points. The Melrose investment looked like ready money for over three furiongs, but Clawson then closed with The Puritan and won all out by a length. Kimberly made his bid a trifle too late, but he finished strongly at the Prince's throatlatch.

all out by a length. Kimberly made his bid a trifle too late, but he finished strongly at the Prince's throatlatch.

all out by a length. Kimberly made his bid a trifle too late, but he finished strongly at the Prince's throatlatch.

As in many recent events for mares, the second race proved to be little more than a burlesque. Only four candidates appeared and all but one jockey seemed to think that the distance was two miles instead of a mile and a sixteenth, and Coburn was enabled to make a successful Eastern debut on the 8-to-1-shot Andrisa. She took the rail from the odds-on favorite Queen of Song at the first turn and then loped along in front at a snail's pace to the last furlong pole. Here Ransch on Merito wok- up and the flight responded so vigorously that Andrisa was lucky to get home by a neck. The others were beaten off, although the time was three seconds outside of track record.

Racegoers threatened with heart trouble would do well to take a recess while Her Ladyship is running. She was played along the line at even money for the third race, but broke last and only moved up one place until all the others were driving for the line. Then she closed with an extraordinary rush and landed the money by a short head. Some critics blamed Ransch for lying so far out of it, but the majority credited him with a grand bit of riding. Old Tinge came to life again in the closing race and after a long stern chase won by half a length from the 50-to-1 shot. Robert Metcalf. Post Haste, also at long odds, only lost the place by a neck. Dan Rice and The Amazon died in front. Summary:

was too rough this morning to allow the crews to do any time rowing. Not one of the crews went down the river near the course, all seeking the quiet waters of Horton's Cove, where the Varsity eight, the Varsity four, the freshman eight and the freshman four rowed between trees in quarter-mile stretches. The only change in the order of rowing this morning was in the Varsity four, in which Auchiniose, who has been sub for No. 3, got a seat, while Hooker was retired.

The naphtha launch Scud, used for the freshmen coaching, was unloaded from the freight car this morning and launched from the Yale boathouse dock. At 6 o'clock to-night the four crews were ready for another trial, the freshmen eight starting away after a slight change being made in Auchinciose's outrigger. The 'varsity eight followed the freshmen, and soon after the four-oared crews were on the water. Owing to the choppy water and strong southerly breeze the oarsmen were sent over to Horton's Cove again, where an hour was spent in short stretches. Capt. Allen was out of the 'Varsity beat this evening and stationed himself with Coaches Gallaudet and Brown in the bow of the launch Soud. In Capt. Allen's place was Brock, whose regular seat is at 4: Kunzig at 2 took Brock's place and Substitute Hooker filled the vacancy.

The sir was very cool and many of the oarsmen were compelled to wear their sweaters.

Dr. Gallaudet said to-night that all the men were in first-class condition with the exception of two of the 'Varsity eight who are slightly indisposed, but not enough to keep them out of the boat. The old eight-oared shells are being used by the crews, the new Davy and Rudduck boats not being risged yet. Erne Agrees to Fight O'Brien.

Frank Erne yesterday signed articles to meet Jack O'Brien again. The battle will be for twenty-five rounds at 155 pounds. In regard to his prospective fight with Terry McGovern at 123 pounds, the light-weight champion says that he has been misquoted and that it would be impossible for him to get down to 128 pounds, no matter how hard he tried. He adds, though, that he will fight McGovern at the light-weight limit.

Says Pitz Is to Blame for the Condition of His Hand. TO THE EDITOR OF THE SUN-Sir: I think

Fitzsimmons is entirely to blame for the condition of his hand and his inability to meet Ruhlin on the date agreed upon. When he first hurt his hand we agreed to a postponement and refused a forfeit. Then I tried to talk Fliz out of fighting Dunkhorst. His hand was not fit to use, and, besides. Ruhlin was taking no chances. He has kept out of the ring preparing to meet Fliz for three months. Fliz ought to have given his hand into the care of a good physician. It would have been well now. He has been treating it himself and losing every day.

But while Ruhlin and I don't think he deserves any concessions I am willing to give Fliz back the forfeit money he now loses, and the elub will probably do the same, if he will agree to meet Ruhlin before he fights any one else the forfeit money to be returned to Fliz when he enters the ring. In the meantime Ruhlin is not going to be ried up, but is willing to make a match with anybody, to fight any place and at any time, the sooner the better. Yours respectfully.

The veteran cricket team of the Paterson C. C. journeyed to Prospect Park yesterday for a game with the Manhattan veterans. A pleasant game ensued. but the Manhattans proved too strong and eventually won by 46 runs. F. J. Prendergast made his first appearance as a veteran for the Manhattans and disappearance as a vector in the annatum and distinguished himself as a bowler. He obtained 7 wickets for 20 runs, and against his effective delivery J. W. Hooper, who played a good innings of 37, was the only Paterson man to maze a stand. C. F. Hunter bowled well for Paterson and secured 5 wickets for 40 runs, but G. Boxill, W. Burrows, A. Nugent, and A. J. Gray all got into double figures for Manhattan. The score: Manhattan, 103; Paterson, 57.

LUCILLE BEATS COBWEBS.

CHICAGO TROTTER WINS TWO ROUS ING BRUSHES ON THE SPEEDWAY.

Ten Thousand Persons on Hand to Witnes the Contest—The Horses Were Never More Than Haif a Length Apart and at Finish Lucille Was Only a Short Neck Ahead. On the peoples' trotting track at Speedway Park nearly if not quite 10,000 persons yesterday saw Cobwebs, 2:12, and Lucille, 2:004, the rival road horses of New York and Chicago struggle as only well-bred horses can struggle to give each other the dust. A finer, fairer contest between trotters was never seen, and old horsemen who have witnessed hundreds of formal races in the Grand Circuit threw up their hats and pranced around like a lot of schoolboys as they saw the two splen-did animals, driven by men of national prominence in the business world, dash down road in a neck-and-neck brush for the lead. Lucille won the first brush by the length of her blood-like neck. Everybody said so, who stood in the throng near the agreed finish line at the end of the stone wall, a quarter of a mile north of Washington Bridge and half a mile from the starting point at Dyckman street. But the second brush-for months to come the men who drive trotters will raise their voices when they talk about the result of that rasping contest. It was so close that those who stood exactly opposite the finishing point on the west side of the driveway were cock-sure Cobweb's nose was in front, while those who lewed the finish from the river sidewalk gave the victory to the fleet Lucille by a head.

The announcement that Cobwebs, 2:12, Caryle Carne, 2:11%, and Lucille, 2:09%, were to meet n a brush for the right to be classed as the king or the queen of the Speedway, brought out a throng of road riders and pedestrians which made all former gatherings at Speedway Park appear small by comparison. Every inch available space commanding a view of the driveway was occupied shortly after 4 o'clock when Nathan Straus jogged Cobwebs up toward Dyckman street, followed a few minutes later by a surrey in which were C. K. G. Billings, the owner of Lucille, accompanied by ex-Mayor Hugh J. Grant and Anthony N. Brady. The spectators stood three deep along the elevated western sidewalk, and those who couldn't elbow their way in took to the niches in the overhanging cliff, or sat in the shade of the wooded hillside further back from the driveway. On the road there was such a crush of vehicles that the police found it impossible to keep them all

SHABREY AND RUHLIN NEXT.

Satched to Fight Twenty-five Rounds and Gus Ruhlin was arranged yesterday. They will meet at Coney Island on June 20, for 80 per cent. of the gate receipts. As soon as Billy Madden learned that Sharkey was without an engagement he looked up Torm O'Rourke. The latter, when asked whether the former sailor would fight Ruhlin, said that nothing would suit him better, and a mill was clinicled without delay. Madden wired Hublin, who has been at Lakewood for nearly three months. to let up in his work for about an engagement he looked up Torm O'Rourke. The it was a furiong further on that his driver first rang out, "Go on there," and sent the uplifted whip hissing through the air at the side of the flying trotter. The gallant old gelding's hoofbeats came faster and faster as they neared the goal. Lucille's advantage melted away to a neck in a few strides. Mr. Billings spread his arms and humped his shoulders as he always does in a hard drive, and he played on the reins with a touch as fine as a trout fisher's in railying the mare to her best rate of speed. Her neck—at least a part of it—was still in front at the finish line, but Cobwebs was coming with a wet sail. Ten yards further on he had cut her lead down to a head—both drivers kept on after passing the post agreed still in front at the finish line, but Cobwebs was coming with a wet sail. Ten yards further on he had cut her lead down to a head—both drivers kept on after passing the post agreed upon as the finishing point. All of a sudden Lucille left her stride and the big horse rushed ahead with the speed of a loomotive. Some horsemen who started their watches from the drop of a signal flag and stopped them as the horses passed the half-mile post, made the time 103—a 2.06 gait.

Though Mr. Straus had stipulated for only one brush provided neither horse made a break, he was ready to go again after this red-hot contest. Mr. Billings promptly consented to another trial, and so the horses were jogged back to Dyckman street, where they rested half an hour before their next round. Lucille couldn't steal a march on the chestnut horse when it came to this brush. Cobwebs evened matters up by sprinting away more than half a length in front and setting the pace hot from the first turn of the wheels. The mare was on the right-hand side of the read. As they swung around the bend Mr. Billings took her in so close to the carriages at the curb line that many persons in the crowd near the bridge thought he was pulling up. The footing was better there and Lucille made the most of it, skimming along the smooth, cushioned surface at a clip which carried her up to even terms with Cobwebs soon after the first quarter post was passed. From there to the finish the two gallant trotters struggled heads apart, first one and then the other seening to have the advantage. As they shot past the winning post they were going stride for stride, with necks outstretched, eyes blazing and both reinsmen driving as they never drove before. Mr. Billings's first words were, when he had slowed Lucille down to a jog, turned her and walked her back to the finish line:

"Who won?"

Melville C. Boynton, who stood right at the half-mile post on the west side of the road, said: "If I had to answer for my life I would say Cobwebs beat the mare a short head." Some other did."

After all, the victory of the Chicago trotter was a triumph for New York: Lucille was bred and raised in the western part of this State, while Cobwebs is a California product. The bay mare went through a remarkable campaign last year, coming out in the 3:00 class and gaining her record of 2:00% within a few weeks after trotting her first race. She was one of the stars of the season, winning many races. Her beauty, docility and great natural speed induced Mr. Billings to pay $7,000 for her at the end of the campaign.

Billings to pay $7,000 for her at the end of the campaign.

The Chicago sportsman won another big victory yesterday with his chestnut pacing stallion Hontas Crooke, 2:09. A brush had been arranged for Crooke, Jack, 2:12½, and Dariel, 2:07½, Jack was withdrawn after having shown speed enough to warrant the belief that he could beat them all. Dariel started against the chestnut stallion. At the first trial she was interfered with and Dr Kane pulled her back to a walk near the quarter post. In the second brush Hontas Crooke beat her cleverly by about a neck after a rousing contest.

Arion in Training. From the Boston Herald.

Pretty nearly every watch at Readville yesterday was snapped when Henry Titer turned J. Malcolm Forbes' $125,000 stallion, Arion (2074). for a repeat. The old chamrion has been out of training six years, but he acts like a two-year-old and can brush as fast as when campaigned Budd Doble. Yesterday the watches caushim in 2.24 with the last half in 1:11. Some the watches made the last part of the manal second faster.

New L. A. W. Consulate Stopping Abuses and Seeking Improvements.

At the May meeting of the New York Local

Consulate of the L. A. W. at the Grand Union Hotel on Wednesday night, the new organization manifested an energy and direction that was lacking in the old consulate. There were seventeen consuls from the different borough resent, all of the "substantial citizens" cass, and they took hold of the matters needing correction with brevity and vigor. There was no time wasted in squabbling and the meeting adjourned at 10 o'clock after transacting considerable business. Vice-Chair-man George C. Pennell presided A worthy idea if properly executed was expressed it a motion made by H. E. Ackerly that the Rights and Privileges Committee should draft a brief set of highway principles and seek to have them incorporated in the revised charter The idea as set forth was not to embody road ordinances in detail, but to establish in the charter fundamental precepts which the municipal makers of ordinances would have to recognize. The matter of having the trolley cars stop on Sixty-first street, before crossing Fort Hamilton avenue, was referred to a committee. This is the place where a cyclist was killed last summer. The committee on the need of repairing Flatbush avenue reported that this work was now in progress, and the committee on Webster and Westchester avenues reported that repairs had been made to the strips on Westchester avenue, which will be welcome news to riders who have been avoiding that thoroughfare. As it is the heavy trucks fast destroy the strips, the committee was instructed to request the proper police authorities to detail one man for day duty, there being an ordinance giving to wheelmen the right of way on such strips. A letter from Chief Consul M. M. Belding called attention to the fact that the street sprinkling association was not leaving the promised dry strip in the centre of the avenues, and also suggested that an effort be made to abolish the cab stand in front of the N. Y. A. C. on Fifty-ninth street and Sixth avenue, and have them go on Sixth avenue. The corner is a transfer point and the cars turn there. As the space is very narrow between the cabs and the Fifty-ninth street tracks it is a dangerous place for both cyclists and the passengers waiting for transfers. A special committee was appointed to attend to both matters reported by the Chief Consul. Two other excellent resolutions were passed and placed in charge of the committees. One was to urge the placing of a light at the shore end of the return cycle path from Coney Island, which is now a dark and dangerous point with a post looming up to threaten the unwary. The other resolution was to ask for the laving of two short stretches of asphalt strips where they are needed for connecting links. One place to be urged is on the 15th street viaduct from Macomb's Dam bridge to St. Nicholas avenue, and the other place is along the three blocks by the Harlem Railroad from 161st street to Webster avenue. cars stop on Sixty-first street, before cross ing Fort Hamilton avenue, was referred to Secretary-Treasurer John F. Clark of the New York State Division, L. A. W., said yesterday that the renewals were coming in with unexpected promptness and volume. and that yesterday he received forty-three. He stated, though, that the lack of an official organ was a drawback, and that he was receiving many inquiries every day about the new magazine, the first number of which was to appear on June 1. The publishers say that the usual difficulties in getting out a first issue seem to have multiplied in this instance, but that members will receive the magazine in a few days.

Toward the end both men began roughing it, which was the cause of the interference by the police.
